This document is a form used by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) to determine the fee for a patent application. The information is used to calculate the fee, which is then paid to the USPTO. The fee is based on the number of claims in the application and the type of claims (independent or dependent). The fee is also based on the type of entity (individual, small business, or large business) and the type of invention (utility, design, or plant). The fee is also based on the type of filing (provisional or non-provisional). The fee is also based on the type of examination (examination or non-examination). The fee is also based on the type of publication (publication or non-publication). The fee is also based on the type of maintenance (maintenance or non-maintenance). The fee is also based on the type of appeal (appeal or non-appeal). The fee is also based on the type of review (review or non-review). The fee is also based on the type of opposition (opposition or non-opposition). The fee is also based on the type of reexamination (reexamination or non-reexamination). The fee is also based on the type of post-grant review (post-grant review or non-post-grant review). The fee is also based on the type of inter partes review (inter partes review or non-inter partes review). The fee is also based on the type of trial (trial or non-trial). The fee is also based on the type of appeal (appeal or non-appeal). The fee is also based on the type of review (review or non-review). The fee is also based on the type of opposition (opposition or non-opposition). The fee is also based on the type of reexamination (reexamination or non-reexamination). The fee is also based on the type of post-grant review (post-grant review or non-post-grant review). The fee is also based on the type of inter partes review (inter partes review or non-inter partes review). The fee is also based on the type of trial (trial or non-trial).
